The 2010 LEC Elections are In Progress

If you are in Councils...

C54 SEA

you need to vote in these elections. ALPAWatch has put together a web page, the 2010 LEC Elections Candidates Page, to help you. This page is designed to provide you one-stop-shopping to:

- See who is running
- Read and compare the candidates letters
- Check voting deadlines
- Check Instructions for voting
- A simple explanation of the LEC elections in general, Plain English LEC Elections. Not sure about what these elections are all about, what's a LEC, what's a MEC? We tried to distill the answers down to a few paragraphs.

Unfortunately, only one of the Candidates has taken advantage of this service so ALPAWatch has not been able to provide you this information.

Nevertheless, you need to research the candidates yourself and Cast and Informed Vote.

It is up to you to dig through it all candidates' material, read between the lines and cast an informed vote. If you cannot tell the difference between candidates or don't understand their campaign letters, CALL THEM!

These elections are not (or at least should not be) just a popularity contest. The pilots you elect have a drastic affect on your career, good and bad. You must educate yourselves on the candidates. Look beneath the surface. Call them. Do whatever you have to in order to Cast an Informed Vote.

Voting is done via Ballot Point at <http://dal.alpa.org/>

Thank you again for participating in ALPAWatch. With the participation of pilots such as you, ALPAWatch will be successful in obtaining the Union Leadership that the Pilot Group deserves, and in doing so regain our fair compensation, our quality of life, our future, and our dignity.
